After A While, the Momentum Gets Going So Fast That You Can't Stop the Process

I have said to you many times that the greatest of keys to the Kingdom is the key of allowing. For allowing requires trust, allowing requires vulnerability. Allowing requires that you let the Holy Spirit bring correction to your mind. And you no longer strive to make that happen. And as you begin to rest into the key of allowing, peace begins to descend – even to the cells of the body. And you find that you react in different ways. You smile, even in the midst of situations that used to create such havoc within the mind. And you will look upon your brother or sister and, even if they are casting stones at you, you will marvel at the great Light that shines just beneath their awareness of themselves. And indeed, you will know the great liberation that comes when suddenly the shutters are thrown open and you realize, “My God, it’s true. I am that Light. I am that Light I have been seeking for countless lifetimes. I am that Light, and I am that Light now.” (JT - Joy)

And then you see the body itself begins to be freed up a bit, where you will no longer be trying to stuff your emotions into the little pockets of Self, saying, “Hold onto this stuff. I don’t want to look at it.” Instead you’ll say, “Okay, open the hatch and let it out.” And it will begin to bubble up for, you see, when Light comes to shine upon the shadows, it stirs them up, and they will run like crazy, trying to find a corner to hide in. But there is no longer a corner, for even the body becomes filled with Light. And the shadows of past memories and old emotions, indeed, do begin to be released. But instead of fearing them, you embrace them. You embrace them, knowing – knowing – that as you love what you have feared, you embrace it and you, therefore, transcend it. That is why, ultimately, you see, it occurs only in the mind. And what is healed? The perception that fear must be feared.

Fear itself is an illusion. That doesn’t mean you don’t experience it. Much of what you call your dreams, and when you awaken in the morning you would say, “Well, that was unreal. It was just a dream.” Fear is no different, and if you would well receive it, fear is the foundation of all dreams. All dreams of time, all dreams of separation, all dreams of anguish find themselves rooted in fear. But when you allow, when you truly are willing to allow the Light you are to shine upon all shadows born of illusion, you know that in you there is the power to say, “I am open. Bring them forth,” or “Open the hatches.” And you will look at the memories that you may carry of times you have failed...at times you’ve hurt and been hurt. And you say, “Oh, look at that. Yes, I can feel that. I remember that one. Boy, was I ever into it then.” And you’ll shine your Light on it. And you will extend forgiveness to yourself, and the shadow itself becomes dissolved into the Light that shines upon it. Light added to Light only increases your radiance.

And after a while, the momentum gets going so fast that you can't stop the process. There's no weekend off. And at any time, things begin to flood up, and many of you know what I'm talking about. Always continue to shine your light on whatever arises within you.

Do not become identified with the thoughts of fear and the thoughts of limitation and the thoughts of loss. That is the voice of the ego saying, “No, no, no. Don’t identify yourself with Light just yet. I fear my own demise of power.” Just there, just there is the greatest of blessings given to you – given to you by the Father, who loves you. The freedom that can never be taken from you, the freedom of your choice. The freedom of your choice to look upon all things that arise with the Love of Christ.

To Look Upon the Face of Love Is to See and Know Yourself As a Love That Recognizes Love

All loving thoughts are true. Everything else is an appeal for help and healing. Even within yourself. And so, when that voice within you...some of you occasionally know what this is like...it rears its head and says, “No, no. You can’t do it. Don’t leap off the cliff.” Love it, and realize that voice is not yours. If you need to, you can imagine that a stranger has slipped in in the middle of the night and is sitting in your living room, believing now that that home belongs to the stranger. And that stranger is the voice that would have you believe that you are other than what you are created to be...the thought of perfect Love in form.

Love cannot be accomplished. It cannot be gained. It cannot even truly be fashioned. Love cannot be found, because it is not an object outside of yourself. It cannot be created, for it has always been. Love waits in certainty. Love waits in patience, for the holy Son of God, who has but dreamed the dream of separation, to rest for just a moment and to be willing to choose anew. To turn from the roar and the din of the world – and the world is not outside of your own mind – to choose again to touch the place of perfect peace and of grace. And there Love shines. And to look upon the face of Love is to see and know yourself.

And in the end of all seeking and in the end of all striving, the awakened Son rejoices and laughs uproariously and says, “My goodness, what a good dream I’ve had. But now the time of wakefulness is upon me.” And for a little while, you seem to find yourself yet in space and time. And you look down at the hands of the body – formerly called your body – and you marvel. You look at the body anew. For what seemed to be something that was always filled with conflict between a place that imprisoned you and a place you hoped to find safety. But the thing that you don’t even understand what it is has been translated – translated into a beautiful and holy temple. Translated into nothing more or nothing less than a simple means through which the awakened mind of Christ extends Love to the parts of himself – formerly perceived as strangers and friends, brothers and sisters. So that the fullness, the whole mind of Christ might awaken and merge back together into its only reality.

Now that happens to you more often than you give yourself credit for. When you set aside every fear, when you set aside every need, when you set aside believing that you know what your needs are, when you are willing to just stop judging your brother, and for a moment, you look into someone's eyes and you embrace eternity. And everyone in this room knows what that is like, because you've done a million times. No matter how fleeting, you have done it a million times. In that moment of no thought and no time, the two fragments that seem to be separated by bodies become one. And the Light of Love shines through the eyes for, indeed, the eyes are the window of the soul. And the sparks of Love meet. Not a Love that craves; not a Love that needs attachment, but a Love that recognizes Love. That is called the holy instant, and it makes all things new.

And that is why your relationship to your brother and sister is the most incredible blessing, the most precious possession, you can ever have. Each moment of relationship provides you the opportunity to choose holiness and not specialness, Love instead of fear, forgiveness instead of judgment. And because you look upon your brother, and because you look upon your sister and realize they are the means of your salvation, you will no longer tolerate error in yourself, and you will look upon them and see the face of Christ. You will learn to look past the body, look past time and history. You'll learn to discern that radiant Light that shines in them as it shines in you. And then you will learn the magic involved in the simplicity of this teaching. You will learn what you choose to teach. And in teaching it, you must learn it for yourself.

That is why there is no time to lose. Each moment is the opportunity for awakening. Each moment the opportunity for feeling that the things of time that have seemed to be a burden upon you and upon your brother can be placed aside, and the mantle of peace, like a gentle dove, can descend upon you, wrapping you in the shawl of a perfect Love that brings such joy to your being that you cannot find words to describe it, and no way to contain it. You finally realize, "I don't have any choice. I have to give it away. My Father keeps pouring so much of it into me, it just keeps picking up the speed. I just have to keep giving it away." And then the miracle has occurred. Gone is the seeker. Gone is the one who needs. Reborn is the finder. Reborn is the one who gives.

You Will Acknowledge That Each Moment Is Perfect

After all is said and done and you've finally chosen to recognize that you are sick and tired of being sick and tired – whatever that might mean to you – there's just a simple choice to be made. To arise in each morning and to recognize that if you are in this world it must be the perfect place for you to practice the constancy of choice that will carry you beyond every pain and every hurt and even ultimately beyond every trace of thought that you must be a body in space and time. (JT-HR)

The Light within you will radiate so brightly that no body could ever contain it and you will not choose to take up your residence in this classroom called space and time because the Light of the Holy Spirit will be shining through you so brightly that it will simply be required that you step into a different room in my Father's Mansion. That means that each day, each hour, each moment not to be any means mundane or something you have to struggle to get through. It is a precious gift because it's solely in that moment, in that set of circumstances in which you can choose to heal your misidentification with old patterns by making a new choice. That's why they keep repeating themselves.

Relationship is everything – ultimately relationship between Heavenly Father and earthly mother between the things of matter – if you will. Time is simply given you that you might choose to use it constructively. And the only constructive use is the practice of vigilance, the discipline of the mind which means simply you are choosing to care for yourself. That you no longer are willing to tolerate any other choice than to be the presence of peace – to be who you are created to be.

Time and the body are really only one thing. The body represents the field of time but because you have created time it is only through time you can transcend time. And the biggest error you can ever make is to be willing to tolerate an error of perception in which you begrudge the circumstances in which you find yourself. Because that attitude itself represents the seduction of the perceptions of the world that have swept you into its bed once again.

When you can acknowledge that each moment is perfect you will know that there is a power within you to choose Love, to choose Peace. And that's all that you are ever asked to do. That is what begins to create, to clear the channel if you will, so that the Light of Christ that you really are can begin to shine through the veils, the shadows, the fears, the doubts and they begin to dissolve. From where? From your mind. And your mind becomes illuminated, that's what all your mystical talk means.

Every moment in which you find your button being pushed the proper response is to give thanks. The healing response is to give thanks. The response that will move you through that ring of fear so that you step out of the hell, the rut of having constantly repeating it in some form or another is thankfulness- to hold with deep gratitude the lessons of this moment.

Let It Rip!

Let the Light of Christ shine so radiantly within, and with every breath and with every thought and with every word and with every deed that they themselves marvel at the miracles that unfold. And you begin to dance through time. And you see that the Holy Spirit has translated it into a magical Kingdom in which every day is filled with the grace of miracles. And every day is a little better than the one before. And the only thing you need to pay attention to is to simply watch, so that you don't become a little contracted against the on-flowing tidal wave of Joy that descends to light up your mind and your heart, and even the cells of your body. (JT - Joy)

You know the saying in your language, “Let it rip.” You must understand that, when I walked upon this plane the language that I was given to use was rather serious, for the most part rather formalized. And so, there were some limitations in how the Gospel could be expressed, at least when words were used – but not when there was dancing and laughter and singing and rejoicing and embracing. Unto you it is given in this day and in this hour to truly look around you and to see “All that I need for my salvation, all that I need for my awakening, is presented to me here. For here is my brother and my sister, who has walked together with me since before time is – given to me of God. And as I love them, I love the One who had sent me forth. And as I love them, I honor them. As I honor them, I learn to honor the Son that dwells within my own heart. And in honoring that Son, the Atonement is completed on Earth, as it is already completed in Heaven. And Heaven is your home.

Delight – listen well – delight in the blessing of time. And see not a single moment as that which would imprison you – for there is nothing outside of you. While within you, is the absolute freedom of choice, given wholly and never earned – in which you can look upon the things of time. Each of them that time seems to require of you, and you can bring the blessing of Christ to it. You can choose to radiate instead of contract. You can choose unlimitedness instead of limitation. You can choose Love instead of fear. And that is the great gift of time. Because time was created in error, it is then translated into the means by which you awaken from time itself. Therefore, use it constructively.

Rush Up and Give Them a Kiss on the Cheek

Realize that you live in a domain in which avoidance of relationship is absolutely impossible. Therefore, embrace your relationships – even the ones that push your buttons. For rest assured, they are the ones given unto you in that moment, and not a year before or a year after – they are the ones that provide the very stepping-stones upon which you are asked to walk, so that you can pass through an old ring of fear and realize that you’ve just awakened a little more fully. And the power of the radiance of that Light you are has penetrated, incarnated a little more deeply, into the mind and even into the body. So, next when someone casts stones at you, rush up and give them a kiss on the cheek. And say, “Thank you so much. My goodness gracious, now I can heal this part of myself.”

Above all things, never let your vigilance sleep. Should I don the cloak of the Savior of the world and kneel at your feet and beg forgiveness? It has always been a funny picture to me that others would put the mantle of the Savior of the world upon my shoulders, so as to avoid responsibility for awakening themselves. And I would scratch my head and wonder, “Why would they want to do that?” When in the Truth, deep within them, they know that they must place the mantle upon themselves, and see themselves as equal unto me, who has been sent to be only your Brother and your Friend.

The Choice and Power Abides In You Now

If Christ dwells in me – and I assure that Christ dwells in me – that same Light must dwell in you equally. For if it does not, it means that God has created a rather imbalanced Creation. And whenever you have felt imbalanced, it is because you have denied the part of you that is true and real and whole and lovely, forgiven and loved wholly. Listen well to what I just shared with you, for there you will find the key that brings the mind gently back to peace each time you remember it. Each time you remember it. Each moment in time when you are not wholly joyous, it is because you have forgotten the truth about yourself.

When that really begins to sink in, you are going to feel a great weight lifted from your shoulders – the weight of perceiving that what has stolen your peace has come from somewhere outside your mind. It never has.

There is no set of circumstances that can dictate the choice one makes between Love and fear. Just as there are no special circumstances you must strive and achieve before you have the power to choose between Love and fear. The choice and that power abides in you now. It is equally in a newborn child as it is within you. And the process of life, the meaning of time, is merely to create a field in which you can re-awaken to the power of your own choice

At first, as you recognize it, it may not feel too good, because you'll look upon some of your creations and go, "Whoa!" That which is called "being in Hell", what some of your psychologists might call being psychotic, neurotic, and all the rest, is simply because a part of the mind has looked upon its creations and which it has created, unlike God, out of fear, and it has taken upon itself the mantle of guilt. And guilt creates a block, so you spin in the same circle over and over again. That is what Hell is, it's being in a rut. But when you look upon your creations that seem to elicit unpleasant feelings because, perhaps, you see how your creation involved manipulation or control or what-have-you...when you look upon those things and remember the truth, that they do not leave a single trace upon the holy mind of Christ. And when you look upon them and realize that your Father doesn't even see them, you are free to be re-born in this moment, and to allow your life to be made anew.

Ah, beloved friends, carry not the weight of the past upon you. It is gone already. It is gone already. And the heavy bag that you have been carrying upon your shoulders was removed before you experienced it by the Love that created you. And you have been weighed down only by illusions. Would you not choose to join with me in casting off the bag that is no longer there?

In short, don't make the process of awakening so serious. Is it not rather interesting that seriousness is what creates the world of confusion and pain, and it's an illusion. Therefore, you bring the bag of seriousness to the very process whereby you think you're going to wake up. And you do your techniques, you read your text, you memorize all of the lines...but still the bag is on your shoulder. And you can't quite figure out why it's still there. The bag is filled with the weight of seriousness.

And Joy, you see, is made of Light – isn't she? And that is why whenever you are not wholly joyous, you have identified yourself with an illusion. A bag that was already removed from your shoulders the very first moment that the holy Son of God began to fall asleep and to create the dreams of creations that are unlike God. And the Holy Father reached into your dreams and took the tiny bag from your shoulders and dropped it into the fires of purification, if you will. And throughout every incarnation you've ever lived, the bag has not been there – but you have perceived that it is still with you.

Joy Is the Theme of Every Moment

Now we come to the point of what I would share with you in this hour. The way – the way in life that speaks of perfect peace is not a way of striving. It is a way of allowing. The way in life that demonstrates the truth of your being is not the way that the world has taught you, because in it there can be no seeking. The way in life that allows the Light of Christ to incarnate right where you thought you were requires only that you put into practice the acknowledgment that you are that Light – the Word being made flesh in this moment. That is the shift that must come to the mind. I don't care if you practice complex spiritual techniques for ten thousand lifetimes. I don't care if you learn how to walk on water and heal the sick. After all is said and done, there is yet one step that must be taken: your willingness to put to sleep the dream of the seeker – to be the presence of one who has found. And the trick of the course is that the ego will say, "Well, I can't do that because I haven't found it yet." And what I'm saying to you is that in your choice held in the mind to simply say, "I and my Father are one. I am the one who has found, and that Light begins to live through me now." That is the way that you find it, by acknowledging that you possess what you have believed you do not. Seems rather paradoxical.

I've said many times that the Truth of the Kingdom is diametrically opposed to the truth of the world. If your world says that you must struggle, then the way of the Kingdom must be a way of ease. If the world says you must seek, the way of the Kingdom must be that you have already found. If the world says you are guilty, the way of the Kingdom must say there is no guilt. If the way of the world teaches you that you are born to suffer and die, the way of the Kingdom must say that you are eternal and do not abide within the space and volume of a body. If the way of the world says that your mind is your brain, the way of the Kingdom will say the mind of Christ is that which radiates, animating the brain in the body so that it can serve as a means of communicating the Love of God. If the way of the world says you are frail, the way of the Kingdom says you have the presence of eternal strength. If the way of the world says it's not good to have too much fun, what do you think the Kingdom says? Party! Hmm. That is a good phrase. "Party". Abide in that infinite Light of Joy. Down, bring it down and express it to the world, so that the world sees the demonstration of the Truth.

So you see, the theme of this hour is this: It is a three-letter word: Joy. Joy is the theme of this hour. Joy is the theme of every moment. Joy is the reality of your being. Joy is that which infuses the cells of your body. Joy is that which seeks to radiate from the great ray of Light that you are, and to send to the crown of the head, and to explode out through your very fingertips, rays of light exploding in all directions. Joy is that which will create laughter and smiles. Joy is that which seeks to light up to the heart. Joy is that which heals. Joy is that which brings forth unlimited power to create like God. Joy – joy is the sign of an awakened heart and a corrected mind. Indeed.

And the greatest of blessings, the greatest of recognition, is this: you cannot create the means in this world to become joyous. But you can bring the joyousness you are to the circumstances of this world. And when you do that, you are the Savior of the world. You are the one sent forth of God. Enlisted in what seems to be the Foreign Legion. Indeed!
